

Information Concerning Evacuations

Campus community members will be advised to evacuate a college building during an emergency or for other safety reasons. The signal to evacuate will normally be given through the use of the fire alarm bell.

Should a gas leak occur and evacuation is necessary, the signal to evacuate will be given verbally. Since gas is lighter than air, it will rise to the ceiling level of a room and work its way down to the floor. An explosion can be caused if the fire alarm, telephone, or appliances in the affected area are used.
